Pope Francis - December 17, 1936 - April 21, 2025

It is with profound sadness that the Archdiocese of Saint Boniface learned of the passing of Pope Francis on the morning of April 21st.

“Pope Francis was and continues to be a source of inspiration for Catholics, notes Archbishop Albert LeGatt. He significantly impacted the life of the Church and the life of the world. He will be profoundly missed. His teachings and personal example will surely live on.

“For all in the world, he was a tireless defender of the poor, the downtrodden, victims of war, migrants, survivors of clergy abuse and the marginalized. He continually called for peace and solidarity, as well as a proper stewardship of the environment.

“His heartfelt apology in 2022 to the Indigenous of Canada and his recognition of the Church’s role in the repression of their language, culture and spirituality that occurred in residential schools was an important milestone in the continuing journey of reconciliation with First Nations, Inuit and Métis people across the country, and in our own archdiocese.

“For the Church, Pope Francis brought profound changes through his advancement of synodality, of listening to all as a way to foster a greater participation by all in the Church’s life. He brought special attention to young people, families and those distant from the Church. He continued the transformation of the Church’s administration and its financial transparency.

“We ask all the faithful to keep the Holy Father in their prayers.”

We ask that Pope Francis be welcomed into your presence, O Lord, accompanied by the Blessed Virgin Mary, St. Joseph, St. Francis of Assisi, and all the saints, and that you would bring comfort to us, Pilgrims of Hope, who mourn.

3rd Sunday of Easter C- May 4th, 2025

“Jesus said to them, ‘Come, have breakfast.’”

Today, on the third Sunday of Easter, we are still contemplating the appearances of the Risen One, this year according to the Evangelist John, in the impressive twenty-first chapter, all of it imbued with sacramental references, very much alive for the Christian community of the first generation, that which received the evangelical testimony from the Apostles themselves.

After the Easter events, they seem to return to their usual occupation, as if they had forgotten that the Master had made them “fishers of men.” An error that the Evangelist recognizes, noting that — despite their efforts — “they caught nothing” (Jn 21:3). It was the night of the disciples. However, at dawn, the known presence of the Lord turns the whole scene upside down. Simon Peter, who had previously taken the initiative in the unsuccessful fishing, now pulls in the full net: one hundred and fifty-three fish is the result, a number that is the sum of the numerical values of Simon (76) and ichthys (=fish, 77). Significant!

Thus, when under the gaze of the glorified Lord and with his authority, the Apostles, with the primacy of Peter —manifested in the triple profession of love for the Lord— exercise their evangelizing mission, the miracle occurs: “they catch men.” Fish, once caught, die when they are taken from their environment. Likewise, human beings also die if no one rescues them from darkness and suffocation, from an existence far from God and shrouded in absurdity, leading them to the light, the air and the warmth of the life of Christ, which he himself nourishes from the shore of his glory, a splendid figure of the sacramental life of the Church and, primarily, of the Eucharist. In it the Lord personally gives the bread and, with it, gives himself, as indicated by the presence of the fish, which for the first Christian community was a symbol of Christ and, therefore, of the Christian.
