“For my flesh is true food, and my blood is true drink”

Fr. Esteban SALAZAR González
(Puerto Vallarta, Mexico)

Today the celebration of Corpus Christi gives us the opportunity, on the one hand, to appreciate and give thanks for the great gift offered to us in the Sacrament of the Eucharist. In it, the Lord's promise is fulfilled: “I am with you always, until the end of the age” (Mt 28:20). This sacramental presence began at the Last Supper, when Jesus “broke and shared” His Body and Blood, a gift that would continue because at that same Supper He also entrusted them with the power to make Him present: “Do this in memory of me” (Lk 22:19).

Saint John, in his Gospel, tells us that each of the signs Jesus performed had the purpose of awakening and strengthening faith in Him (cf. Jn 20:31). Saint Paul, for his part, emphasizes the great importance of the Resurrection: “If Christ has not been raised, your faith is in vain” (1 Cor 15:17). But that faith must be nourished, and the best way to do so is by eating the very Body of the Lord: “My flesh is true food” (Jn 6:55). For this reason, this feast also reminds us of the responsibility we have not only to be well prepared to receive Him, but also to truly “eat” Him.

Indeed, His Body will give us life to the extent that we assimilate it. Just as with any food we give our body—if it is to benefit us—it must be absorbed, so too the Body of the Lord will be a source of strength and life insofar as we allow Him to become part of ourselves. For this reason, according to Pope Leo XIV, “participation in the liturgy does not end in the church, but transforms daily life.”

In other words, our Communion with the Lord, the Holy Eucharist, Corpus Christi, will be truly effective in us to the extent that our lives become a genuine sign that leads others to believe. The Lord Himself suggested this to us in these words: “Let your light shine before others, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven” (Mt 5:16).
